Re: De'Lante Glenn

To Honorable Judge Tigar,

I have known Mr. Glenn for over fifteen years. I am Glenn's partner/significant other and mother of his children. I am writing this letter in regards to Mr. Glenn's character. I've seen him at his best and at his worse. Overall he is an intelligent man, outgoing, silly, kind-hearted and wonderful person. I will like to further discuss his character before and during his drug addiction. I would like for you to see him as the man I know. Mr. Glenn is a wonderful father who has stepped up as a father figure to my oldest daughter from a previous relationship. He treats her like his own and showers her unconditionally with love. Even-through our break-ups, he still managed to be there and support her. He helps the children with homework, teaches them about respect and morals, teaches them about God and shows them how to pray. And most of all he plays with them and spends quality time with them. The children love watching movies with him, going to the park, and going swimming.

I feel as his drug addiction is what holds him back for being the great son, brother, father and partner that he can be. He is not the same person I fell in love with when he is on drugs. His drug addiction has caused a lot of stress, pain and trauma. He's unable to be a provider when he is on drugs because he's unable to keep a job. It saddens me to see him that way. He has a lot of trauma he needs to heal from in order to be better. He has cried many of nights, sometimes he cries in his sleep. But I think he's too embarrassed to tell me what's wrong. He's cried to me at times when he was high. I now know he wants help. He has verbally told me. He finally realize he does have an addiction and need help. He's been speaking to someone from a program.

At first, he thought he was in control and denied having a drug addiction. And was trying to hide it, til he couldn't hide it anymore. I started to find the drug and notice his behavior when he was high. The home can be a very relaxing/calm place when he isn't high, and at times he is high the energy and tone in the home is not right. Because when he's high I refuse to let him be home because the children don't need to see him that but also don't need him outside when he isn't functioning in his right state of mind.

He seems motivated to get help and stay focused. He has found help while being in Santa Rita. And speaks with the guy once a week. That says a lot, for someone who was in denial about the situation. He also plans to become a truck driver, get involved with mentoring young boys and real estate. He is a great person just needing the appropriate help to fight this horrible addiction so he can become the best version of himself. Please help him. Helping him is helping our family. But mainly helping our children see their father in a positive light and being the role-model I know he is.

Thank you for your time.
